I. ACTION TAKEN BY THE COMMITTEE ON THE EXERCISE OF THE INALIENABLE RIGHTS OF THE PALESTINIAN PEOPLE

On 16 December 1991, in a letter addressed to the Secretary-General (A/46/788-S/23291), the Chairman of the Committee on the Exercise of the Inalienable Rights of the Palestinian People stated the following:

"In my capacity as Chairman of the Committee on the Exercise of the Inalienable Rights of the Palestinian People, I should like to draw your attention, as a matter of urgency, to further attacks carried out by the Israeli Government and settlers against the Holy Places and Palestinian property in East Jerusalem and adjoining neighbourhoods.

"According to a report by the Reuters news agency dated 12 December 1991, approximately 30 Jewish settlers, protected by large numbers of police, forced an entry into six houses belonging to Palestinians in Silwan, an Arab neighbourhood situated in East Jerusalem, and expelled the occupants. The settlers moved into the neighbourhood following a decision by the Israeli Cabinet which authorized them to remain in Silwan after they had attempted for two months to dispossess Palestinian owners of their homes. According to The New York Times of 13 December, this act of usurpation was encouraged and financed by Housing Minister Ariel Sharon. As reported by the same newspaper, in the last few years, Jewish nationalist movements with Government backing have taken over houses in the Old City's Muslim and Christian quarters.

"On 7 December, the Supreme Islamic Committee of Jerusalem published a statement in which it pointed out that the Israeli authorities, under the supervision of high-ranking police officials, had closed the portal of the mosque of the Ottoman School, a famous Islamic site situated in the precinct of the Al-Aqsa Mosque. According to the Supreme Islamic Committee, Israel was thereby attempting to conceal work carried out by the Israeli authorities in a gallery situated in the western part of the Haram al-Sharif wall, inside the precinct of the Al-Aqsa Mosque, and was also trying to prevent the Islamic Waqf from closing the passage leading to the gallery.

"On 19 November, the Information Centre on Human Rights in Palestine, which is based in Jerusalem, reported that on the previous day, Israeli information officers and elements from the special forces and frontier guards had broken into the Islamic Court and other premises situated in Salah el-Din Street in East Jerusalem and that they had seized archives dating back 500 years and connected with the history of Jerusalem, some of which related to the ownership of land and buildings.

"On behalf of the Committee on the Exercise of the Inalienable Rights of the Palestinian People, I should like to express the gravest concern at these acts by the Israeli authorities and settlers, which constitute on the part of Israel a violation of its obligations as the occupying Power under the Geneva Convention relative to the Protection of Civilian Persons in Time of War of 12 August 1949. These acts are also contrary to the provisions of numerous Security Council resolutions, particularly resolutions 271 (1969), 298 (1971) and 476 (1980), concerning the Holy Places and religious buildings in Jerusalem, and resolutions 446 (1979), 452 (1979) and 465 (1980), concerning settlement activities by Israel, and they represent a serious obstruction to the establishment of a comprehensive, just and lasting peace in the Middle East.

"The Committee therefore addresses an urgent appeal to you as well as all the parties concerned to see that all the necessary measures are taken in order to induce Israel, the occupying Power, to put an end to all its illegal settlement activities, ensure respect for the Holy Places and guarantee protection of the Palestinians and their property in the occupied Palestinian territory, including Jerusalem."

II. CONSIDERATION OF THE QUESTION OF PALESTINE AT THE FORTY-SIXTH SESSION OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

On 21 November 1991, the General Assembly took up consideration of the question of Palestine.

The agenda item was introduced by the Chairman of the Committee on the Exercise of the Inalienable Rights of the Palestinian People. The Rapporteur of the Committee then introduced its annual report. The full texts of both statements are presented below: (See A/46/PV.51, pp. 2-19).

Statement by the Chairman of the Committee on the Exercise of the Inalienable Rights of the Palestinian People

"It is an honour and a privilege for me, as Chairman of the Committee on the Exercise of the Inalienable Rights of the Palestinian People to address the General Assembly and introduce the agenda item entitled 'Question of Palestine'.

"First of all, Mr. President, I wish to congratulate you on behalf of the Committee on your election to the Presidency of the Assembly at such an important time in the history of this Organization. Your diplomatic talents and your commitment to peace have been and will continue to be of great value to the smooth progress of our deliberations. Let me assure you of the Committee's full support in the performance of your duties. I should also like to take this opportunity to express thanks once again to your predecessor, His Excellency Mr. Guido de Marco, for the able manner in which he presided over the work of the Assembly last year and for his devotion to the Palestinian cause.

"This past year has seen historic changes and a renewed hope of seeing at last within our reach a comprehensive and just solution to the question of Palestine which has for so long been sought by the international community.

"During this session of the Assembly we have heard speaker after speaker express the hope that the new world order resulting from recent upheavals will be based on respect for the principles of equal rights and self-determination of peoples, on the primacy of law in international relations and on human rights and fundamental freedoms for all, as enshrined in the Charter of the United Nations.

"In action as well as in speech, the international community is demonstrating more and more clearly its desire to ensure that the new world order will live up to those hopes. This year the international community has stepped up efforts to end regional conflicts in various parts of the world, to promote democratic evolution and to lay foundations that will make it possible at last to take a concerted approach to solving the problems common to the human race.

"The end of the cold war, the new spirit of international cooperation and recent developments in the Middle East region have, for the first time in the long history of the Palestinian conflict, created conditions favourable to direct negotiations between the parties concerned.

"Our Committee has considered that development most encouraging and felt that it opened up promising possibilities for international action in aid of the Palestinian people, despite the serious deterioration of the situation in occupied Palestinian territory and despite the suffering and the upheavals experienced by the Palestinian people during and after the conflict in the Persian Gulf.

"I should like to recall that, since the partition of Palestine decided upon by this Assembly 44 years ago, the international community has not been able to bring about the full application of the principles of the Charter to the Palestinian people. After the recognition of the inalienable rights of the Palestinian people in the early 1970s, the General Assembly set up our Committee, thus demonstrating its determination to correct the imbalance resulting from the creation of only one of the two States that had been called for in the resolution on the partition of Palestine. Although endorsed by the General Assembly, the Committee's recommendations for a comprehensive, just and lasting settlement of the question of Palestine on the basis of the principles of the Charter of the United Nations and the resolutions adopted by the Organization have not yet been implemented. Nevertheless the Committee has continued to work ceaselessly to achieve that end and to foster a better understanding of the question in international public opinion.

"During the past few years, particularly since the beginning of the intifadah, which was followed by the declaration of the independence of Palestine and by the 1988 peace initiative, a foundation for international consensus on the key elements of the problem and the modalities for its solution has been laid.

"The central importance of the Palestinian question in finding a solution to the Arab-Israeli conflict and the fact that the Palestinians are a people with the right to the realization and exercise of their national rights are now realities no longer contested by anyone.

"Considering therefore that the international community's most urgent task is to break the diplomatic and political deadlock that has resulted in so much suffering in recent years, our Committee has expressed its support for the peace initiative encouraged by the United States and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics. The Committee sincerely trusts that the Conference convened in Madrid at the end of October last will result in agreements that will meet the needs and aspirations of all parties, and permit the Palestinian people to exercise its rights. The Committee is convinced that this represents an unprecedented, historic opportunity and calls on all parties to display political courage and the necessary readiness for compromise so that the common objective, a just and lasting peace for all the countries in the region, may be attained.

"Israel can and must contribute to this aim, by immediately improving the conditions faced by the Palestinians in the occupied territories. The Committee once again calls urgently on Israel to abide by its obligations as occupying Power under the 1949 Geneva Convention on the Protection of Civilian Persons in Time of war. Our Committee's report, which the Rapporteur will soon be submitting in detail, contains overwhelming information in this connection. Far from being biased, as is claimed by some, the information is based on data collected by organizations that enjoy respect in the field of human rights, on articles that have appeared in the Israeli and Palestinian press and on documents published by Governments, United Nations agencies, non-governmental organizations and experts who have taken part in meetings held under the auspices of the Committee.

"Solving the Palestinian problem would enable an end to be put to Israel's repression of the intifadah, the uprising that is largely the work of young people armed only with stones. Israel's repression of this symbol of the Palestinian people's resistance had, by 31 July 1991, resulted in the death of 966 Palestinians, at least 47 of them killed in clandestine operations carried out by the Israeli Defence Forces. More than 111,000 Palestinians were wounded in the same period, with children accounting for a quarter of the victims.

"Since the beginning of the intifadah, more than 75,000 Palestinians have been detained for varying periods of time, 14,000 under administrative detention orders - that is, without trial or indictment. The incarceration rate in the occupied territory is reported to be the highest in the world. It has also been reported that torture continues to be used as an interrogation method, and information has been received of such ill-treatment in prison and detention camps that it has led to repeated hunger strikes.

"Collective punishment has continued to be a cause of great suffering for the population and of major destruction. Thus, during the Gulf War, at a time when medicines and food were in short supply, curfews, some of them round-the-clock and long-lasting, were imposed on hundreds of thousands of Palestinians. Since the beginning of the intifadah, more than 2,000 Palestinian houses and other buildings have been demolished or sealed up and some 120,000 trees have been uprooted. Very harsh restrictions have been placed on the movement of Palestinians living under the occupation regime, resulting in widespread unemployment. It is estimated that by April 1991 100,000 Palestinians had lost their jobs with Israeli employers, and for the greater part of the intifadah schools have been closed; and most students have been deprived of their right to education for the past four years.

"It is the responsibility of the international community and, in particular that of the High Contracting Parties to the Fourth Geneva Convention, to ensure the re-establishment of respect for human rights in the occupied Palestinian territory. This is an urgent task that we must carry out without waiting for progress in the peace process. Recourse to deadly force against unarmed civilian persons must stop. Schools and universities must be reopened. Political prisoners must be freed. Collective punishments must cease. An improvement of the human rights situation in the occupied territory is bound to make a useful contribution to the peace process.

"The Committee's report points out that since the beginning of the intifadah Israel has confiscated some 500 square kilometres of land in the West Bank and in the Gaza Strip. Since it seized the territory in 1967, Israel has expropriated approximately 60 per cent of Palestinian lands. More than 200,000 settlers now reside in 170 rural and urban settlements in the occupied territory, including expanded East Jerusalem. This process of creeping annexation, which can also be seen in roadbuilding and the diversion of water resources for the use of Israel and Israeli settlers at the expense of the Palestinians, has accelerated in the past few months. These activities are an obstacle to peace and a source of constant conflict in the region. They are also in violation of the Fourth Geneva convention, and therefore have been condemned by the Security Council, the General Assembly and the entire international community.

"It is therefore of the utmost importance that all the confiscations of the land and the settlement activities by Israel in the occupied Palestinian territory, including Jerusalem, be halted.

"In addition to the necessary protection and emergency assistance measures, the international community must do all in its power to stop the rapid deterioration in the living conditions of the Palestinian people and establish the socio-economic infrastructure needed for real development of the occupied Palestinian territory in preparation for its emergence as an independent nation.

"Although there are peace initiatives under way, the Committee for the Exercise of the Inalienable Rights of the Palestinian People has been alarmed by the steady deterioration of the situation in the occupied Palestinian territory, and has therefore made every effort to mobilize public opinion.

"At the same time, the Committee has done its best to contribute to the creation of a climate favourable to the peace process, by encouraging open and constructive discussions between experts representing all parties and all shades of opinion, including Palestinians and Israelis. In 1991, a European Regional Seminar was held at Madrid in May; it was followed in June by the North-American Regional Non-Governmental Organization Symposium at Montreal, and in August by the European Regional Non-Governmental Organization Symposium and the International Non-Governmental Organization Meeting at Vienna. An Asian regional seminar and a non-governmental organization meeting are being prepared and will be held at Nicosia in January 1992.

"The Committee is very grateful to the Governments of Spain, Canada, Austria and Cyprus for the assistance they have given the Committee during the organization of these meetings. We feel that these activities are very useful and enable representatives of Governments and non-governmental organizations, parliamentarians, experts and other individuals to analyse the situation, to establish contacts and to study together strategies for the future.

"The Committee, with assistance from the Division for Palestinian Rights, has continued to follow carefully the situation in the occupied Palestinian territories and to report regularly to the General Assembly and the President of the Security Council. Studies and publications have come out on various aspects of the question of Palestine in order better to inform international public opinion and mobilize it. The Committee believes that the role of the Division for Palestinian Rights as a centre for information and documentation on this question should be duly recognized and appropriately strengthened and has asked the Secretary-General to study the possibility of establishing an automated data bank to facilitate the Division's task.

"After the collapse of the Berlin Wall, another wall has begun to crumble in Madrid - that is, the wall built up by decades of fear, hatred and lack of understanding. The question of Palestine has now reached a crucial stage and the Committee and I trust that the hopes of 1991 will become reality thanks to historic decisions to be taken over the next few months. Our Committee, established to promote the exercise of the inalienable rights of the Palestinian people, will continue to do its utmost to ensure that that goal is finally realized through the triumph of reason and right so that justice is rendered the Palestinians and peace and security is achieved for everybody. Our Committee is resolved, within the context of the mandate given it by the General Assembly, to contribute towards the establishment in the Middle East of an honourable peace with neither victors nor vanquished."

Statement by the Rapporteur of the Committee on the Exercise of the Inalienable Rights of the Palestinian People

"It is an honour and a privilege for me in my capacity as Rapporteur to present to the General Assembly the report of the Committee on the Exercise of the Inalienable Rights of the Palestinian People covering its work during the past year.

"In 1991 the Committee, under the able guidance of its Chairman, Her Excellency Ambassador Absa Claude Diallo, diligently carried out its mandate in conformity with the resolutions adopted by the General Assembly.

"This has been a year of momentous change internationally and in the Middle East region itself, with great consequences for the question of Palestine, and the Committee has closely monitored these developments and has taken them into account in its report.

"In the introduction to the report, the Committee stresses the urgent need to bring about a comprehensive, just and lasting settlement of the question of Palestine in the light of the deteriorating situation of Palestinians in the occupied territory and the intensification of repressive measures and of the policy of annexation of Palestinian and Arab land pursued by Israel. The report reaffirms that this policy and the continued denial of Palestinian rights are the principal obstacles to the achievement of a just peace. At the same time, the Committee recognizes that new opportunities now exist and calls for intensified efforts to bring about a solution based on international law, the United Nations Charter and United Nations resolutions, which must be applied in an even-handed manner.

"Chapters II and III of the report are procedural and summarize the respective mandates of the Committee, the Division for Palestinian Rights and the Department of Public Information; they also give information on the organization of work of the Committee.

"The action taken by the Committee in 1991 is described in chapter IV of the report. The Committee has monitored the situation in the Palestinian territory occupied since 1967, including Jerusalem, on an ongoing basis through the media and the reports of United Nations organs and agencies, as well as through information collected by Governments, non-governmental organizations, individual experts, including Israelis and Palestinians, who participated in meetings held under the auspices of the Committee, and other sources. The Committee also received repeated appeals from Palestinians living under occupation drawing attention to their situation and calling for international protection.

"The Committee notes with deep concern that in its efforts to suppress the intifadah Israel has continued to resort to the use of often excessive and indiscriminate force, including shooting at demonstrators, the misuse of tear-gas and punitive beatings. Human rights organizations have also alleged the use of extrajudicial executions as a means of controlling unrest, and the use of torture as an interrogation method. The incarceration rate of Palestinians in the occupied territory is reported to be the highest known anywhere in the world. Thousands of Palestinians remain imprisoned without charges on trial.

"Information is also given on the expanded confiscation of land and settlement activity by Israel, as well as on a variety of measures which have taken aim at restricting and damaging Palestinian economic activity. The violations of the rights to education, health, freedom of association, and other aspects of the occupation are also briefly described. The chapter concludes with an urgent appeal for the international protection of Palestinians living under occupation and for the provision of emergency relief as well as development assistance.

"As the Assembly is aware, the Committee is mandated to report and make suggestions to the General Assembly and the Security Council on an ongoing basis with regard to developments relating to the question of Palestine. In several letters, which have been issued as documents of the General Assembly and the Security Council and which are listed in section A.2 of the report, the Chairman reported on specific incidents of particular gravity and made recommendations for action by the United Nations and the International community as a whole.

"The same section also contains an account of the Committee's participation in meetings of the Security Council relating to its mandate, and of the decisions taken by the Council on this issue during the year. Reference is also made to the visit of Mr. Guido de Marco, President of the forty-fifth session of the General Assembly, to the Palestinian refugees in the occupied territories and in Jordan. The report of the President of the General Assembly was circulated earlier this year as a document of the General Assembly at the request of the Committee.

"In its programme of work for 1991, the Committee decided to continue to give the utmost priority to promoting the early convening of the International Peace Conference on the Middle East in accordance with resolution 45/68 of 6 December 1990 and to take an active role in the search for peace. In order to promote this goal, the Committee participated in a number of international meetings and organized, in cooperation with the Division for Palestinian Rights, a regional seminar, two non-governmental-organization symposia and an international meeting of non-governmental organizations, as already mentioned by the Chairman. In these activities, the Committee decided to focus on the following priority issues, in addition to the objective of convening the peace conference: the need to support the intifadah and to provide international protection for the Palestinian people, and the problem posed by increasing Jewish immigration and Israel's settlement policy.

"The Committee was encouraged by the active participation in these activities of prominent political personages, parliamentarians, policy makers and other experts, including Israelis and Palestinians, and of committed and knowledgeable non-governmental-organization representatives. The Committee believes that these meetings make a positive contribution to peace efforts by providing a forum for a balanced and constructive discussion of all the issues. Participants have expressed support for the Committee's ideas for a peaceful settlement of the question of Palestine, particularly through the 'land-for-peace' formula, the 'two peoples, two States' principle and the convening of the peace conference, and have called for appropriate measures to end violations of human rights and ensure respect for the Geneva Convention. The Committee also noted that non-governmental organizations have intensified their activities to assist the Palestinian people and to promote a just and comprehensive peace.

"Finally, information is also given on the activities of the Division for Palestinian Rights in the field of research, information and publications and on the commemoration of the International Day of Solidarity with the Palestinian People.

"Chapter V of the report covers the work of the Department of Public Information in accordance with resolution 45/67 C, including the publications and audiovisual activities of the Department, encounters for journalists and news missions to the area.

"Chapter VI, the last chapter of the report, contains the recommendations of the Committee. In this chapter the Committee expresses its continued and full support for the intifadah, the courageous struggle of the Palestinian people to end Israeli occupation and implement the proclamation of independence of November 1988. The Committee reaffirms the international consensus that full respect for and realization of the inalienable rights of the Palestinian people are indispensable for the solution of the question of Palestine. It calls on Israel to recognize and respect Palestinian rights and appeals to all progressive forces in Israel to further intensify their efforts in this regard.

"The Committee welcomes the convening by the United States of America and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics of a conference for the achievement of a comprehensive peace based on Security Council resolutions 242 (1967) and 338 (1973) and on the land-for-peace principle, and expresses the earnest hope that such a conference will bring about a comprehensive, just and lasting solution to the question of Palestine based on internationally recognized principles and United Nations resolutions. The Committee also expresses the hope that the role of the United Nations will be generally intensified in this process.

"The Committee recalls that an international consensus has already been achieved on the essential principles for such a solution. The Committee annexes to the report its original recommendations, which spelled out modalities for the attainment of Palestinian rights and which were endorsed by the General Assembly in 1976 and in subsequent years. These were later complemented by the Declaration and Programme of Action adopted by the International Conference on the Question of Palestine held at Geneva in 1983. The intifadah and the Palestinian peace initiative of 1988 led to an even broader consensus, as shown once again by the near-unanimous adoption last year of resolution 45/68, in which the Assembly called once again for the convening of the International Peace Conference on the Middle East under the auspices of the United Nations, with the participation of all parties to the conflict, including the Palestine Liberation Organization, on an equal footing, and the five permanent members of the Security Council, based on Security Council resolutions 242 (1967) and 338 (1973) and the legitimate national rights of the Palestinian people, primarily the right to self-determination. The Committee also recalls the principles for the achievement of comprehensive peace contained in the resolution, namely, Israel's withdrawal from the occupied territories, including Jerusalem; guaranteeing security arrangements for all States in the region; resolving the problem of the Palestine refugees; dismantling Israeli settlements; and guaranteeing freedom of access to the Holy Places, religious buildings and sites.

"Pending progress towards a political settlement, the Committee calls with the utmost urgency for all necessary measures to protect the Palestinian people and ensure that Israel respects its obligations under the Geneva Convention and United Nations resolutions, and calls in particular on the Security Council to take action to end Israeli confiscation and settlement of Palestinian land. The Committee also calls for increased international assistance to the Palestinian people in preparation for the future exercise of national sovereignty.

"Finally, the Committee pledges to continue and intensify its efforts in implementation of its mandate, and calls on all Governments, including those of the United States and Israel, to participate in its work and in the events organized under its auspices. The Committee trusts that the Assembly will once again endorse its recommendations and support its work as it has done every year since its establishment."

Note: All resolutions and decisions adopted by the General Assembly and Security Council in 1991 relating to the question of Palestine will be issued in due course in document A/AC.183/L.2/Add.12.

VI. EUROPEAN COMMUNITY CONTRIBUTES $16.7 MILLION TO UNRWA FOR GAZA HOSPITAL

The following press release was issued by UNRWA on 11 December 1991:

"The Commission of the European Communities has decided to contribute ECU 13 million ($16.7 million) towards the cost of a 232-bed general hospital in the Gaza Strip, the Commissioner-General of the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East (UNRWA), Ilter Turkmen, announced today. 'This pledge comes at a critical time, since it will enable UNRWA to provide urgently needed medical services to an under-served population,' Mr. Turkmen said.

" The European Community contribution means that UNRWA ~~will be able to undertake construction of the 232-bed hospital near Khan Younis in the southern part of the Gaza Strip. Final design will be completed in mid-1992 and construction will start in late 1992. The hospital is scheduled to open in autumn 1994.~~

"No major hospital construction has taken place in Gaza since 1967. Gaza has a rapidly increasing Palestinian population, now totalling over 750,000, of whom more than 500,000 are Palestine refugees. Health conditions have deteriorated in recent years and the demand for medical care has increased dramatically. The UNRWA project will increase by over 20 per cent the number of hospital beds available to Gaza residents.

"In the past, UNRWA has provided out-patient facilities for Palestine refugees. Construction of the hospital will give Gaza residents easier access to medical care by increasing out-patient facilities, reducing overcrowding in wards and upgrading health-care standards. It will provide essential hospital care at a cost which will be much lower than the rates charged by government hospitals for the majority of Palestinians who have no medical insurance.

"The total estimated cost of the Gaza hospital project is about $35 million. Of this, $20 million is for construction, equipment and related expenses. The remaining $15 million is needed to staff and operate the hospital for the first three years.

"In announcing the EC contribution, Mr. Turkmen said: 'These funds will enable the Agency to move towards construction as soon as the architectural design and engineering work are completed. I hope that further contributions will be forthcoming to enable the project to be completed on time. The construction work will also provide employment opportunities for Palestinians unable to find work in the present difficult socio-economic circumstances in Gaza.'

"The combined contributions of the EC and its member States make the Community the largest single donor to UNRWA's regular budget. In 1991, these contributions amounted to more than $100 million. The Community also responded quickly to UNRWA's appeal for emergency funds in the aftermath of the Gulf War.

" 'This contribution to the Gaza hospital project is a very generous gesture by the EC towards improving the living conditions of the Palestinian people in the occupied territory,' Commissioner-General Turkmen said."
